

THE NATIONAL CHURCHILL MUSEUM

The National Churchill Museum is located on the campus of Westminster College in Fulton, Missouri, the site of Winston Churchill's famous 1946 "Iron Curtain" speech where he predicted a new threat to a world tired of war, an "iron curtain has descended across the Continent."

To commemorate this historic event, the Church of St. Mary, the Virgin Aldermanbury, a 17th century Christopher Wren church, was moved stone by stone from London to Fulton in 1965.

The Museum, located in its undercroft, brings to life Churchill's triumphs and tragedies. Renovated in 2006 and designated by U.S. Congress as America's National Churchill Museum, its exhibits recreate the impact of an entire world at war as visitors step into the trenches of the Great War, pause before the Nazi propaganda machine, and relive the Blitz bombing of London during WWII and this era of unparalleled heroism. The Museum tells the story of Churchill's leadership and the free world's fight for freedom through its darkest days.

PAUL REID

THE ENID AND R. CROSBY KEMPER LECTURESHIP

Paul Reid, a feature writer for the Palm Beach Post, was asked by his friend William Manchester to "collaborate" on the long-awaited third volume of Winston Churchill's life "The Last Lion: Winston Spencer Churchill Defender of the Realm 1940-1965." The second volume had been published in 1988.

"You'll write, I'll edit," he told Reid, and then Manchester abruptly died on June 1, 2004. After agreeing and much research Reid decided to follow his own instincts and writing style. The result was described in a New York Times piece as "more of a stand-alone book than a continuation of the first and second volumes."

It is Reid's master work — and truly his own. It was in every respect what was often said of Churchill himself: "Mr. Churchill, is easily satisfied with the best."
